Student Reporters

The Hong Kong Medical Journal (HKMJ) is a continuation of the Journal of The Hong Kong Medical Association which could trace its roots back to 1948. The HKMJ continued the legacy in 1995 as the premier general medical journal in Hong Kong.

The HKMJ is the official publication of the Hong Kong Academy of Medicine (HKAM) and the Hong Kong Medical Association (HKMA). It is a bimonthly peer-reviewed journal that publishes original research, reviews, case reports, and various other types of articles. The journal is distributed to members of the HKMA and Fellows of the HKAM, and is read by medical professionals in Hong Kong and around the world. The current (2022) impact factor for the HKMJ is 3.7.

The HKMJ introduced the “Healthcare for Society” in 2012 (previously named “Doctor for Society”) with an aim to showcase exemplary models of medical doctors who contributed substantially to society through various forms of community services. Articles in this section allow our readers to appreciate and learn from those who are dedicated to the betterment of our society. As a Student Reporter, you will interview medical professionals and write up articles for publication in The HKMJ. Past articles of the interviews can be accessed on <https://www.hkmj.org>.

Being a Student Reporter of the HKMJ:
- you can make more connections through interacting with local experts
- you will be able to expand your learning through exchanging information and conducting interviews
- you will be able to cite this experience in your CV

If you have a keen interest in writing and conducting interviews, and also want to participate in the discussion of interesting topics, please apply as a Student Reporter.
